

Billiard Aim Trainer II v original BAT Feature Matrix

Frequently Asked Questions:

Q) I have just bought a BAT. Is it a good product?

A) Yes, the product works well. It just lacks a few important new features.

Q) I want to improve my game. Which BAT should I buy?

A) The BAT II. Why? It'll be easier to use, more accurate and more environmental friendly.

Feature Matrix:

Feature	BAT	Billiard Aim Trainer II
Product Design	4 planes	5 planes
Lines and angles on product	Good	✔ Very accurate
BAT Case	Low quality, economical finish	High quality, environment friendly, high gloss & lustre finish
U-guide	Issues with fitting cue balls in U guide on some tables	✔ Issue resolved
"0" lock feature	✘ Yes [annoying]	✔ Removed
BCA approved	✘ No	✔ Yes
Packing	No barcode	Clearer and more attractive, with barcode
Instructions	English only	Multi-lingual
Green rating	★★★★☆	★★★★★
Manufactured by	✔ Dershr	✔ Dershr
Year	2006	2010

The bottom line:

The 2006 BAT is a great product but should be considered an advanced prototype that required more development while the BAT II is a refined product that has resolved all issues.

Furthermore, its packaging is more eye-catching to increase sales in retail outlets.

Aluminium
Die-cast, extrusion

Plastic
Injection, extrusion

Steel
Stamping, forming

Silicone
Injection, extrusion